Well-preserved coffin may be the 'family bible' Posted: Thursday, July 23, 2001 By JOSEPH FITSANAKISMILWAUKEE (AP) - A Milwaukee funeral home has been given permission to make an unusual request. The Milwaukee Journal reports (bit.ly/2aXJ7SY) that the request is to open coffins and show visitors the photos and belongings inside them. The request, according to the Journal, was handed over to Marquette Wintz funeral home in downtown Milwaukee. The newspaper says an unknown number of the city's most notable people are buried there. Wintz tells the newspaper that a particular coffin is of special significance to the family. Do you have a loved one who is buried in the Marquette Wintz cemetery? Does the coffin stand out in your mind? Do you have any memories of the deceased? Please share them with us. Police in St. Louis have arrested a suspect in the fatal shooting of an off-duty police officer in the city's western suburbs. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch reports that police say 30-year-old Nicholas F. Galati is in custody in the Sunday shooting of the 43-year-old police lieutenant. The newspaper says witnesses told police that Galati was wounded and ran into a nearby home. Officers found Galati at the home and took him into custody. St. Louis police say the officer's name has not been released. His death is being investigated as a homicide. Police have not released any details on how the officer was shot. The crime occurred about 4 p 3da54e8ca3
