We'd love to see them taken down. You see, the republicans in the indymedia group are pretty shitty republicans. They hate the american government and love muslims and the left. They have lots of links on their site, like this. news/viewtopic.php?t=115781 That's why they are upset and want to have those links taken down. 26 Jan 2012 19:30:22 +0000 ]]> The Daily Star has an interesting piece about a prequel to the Bond film franchise, entitled "Don't Panic, James Bond is Coming to Life". MGM were in talks to acquire Bond rights back in the 1980s but they were beaten to it by EON, who bought the rights for two subsequent films. The book follows the early days of 007 as a regular soldier working under "M", M16 and MI6; this is because there was a previously unrecorded story line that was published in the late 90s, which many Bond fans are frustrated about - The termination of American mercenary Tex Willard, who was referred to as "the man with the golden gun" - but the writer's note at the end of the book indicates that this happens only in the original novelisation. For the most part, it's a well-written book. For someone who has read every Bond book and screenplay, it doesn't really add much; it could have been better, but at the end of the day, the new book is inferior to the new story, which is in the hands of writers Neal Purvis and Robert Wade. Purvis and Wade are shown to be telling the story in a similar style to the films they produced, rather than the
