A bootstrap script runs each time FreeRADIUS is started. Previously, this script generated new testing certificates in the /etc/raddb/certs directory and as a result, the FreeRADIUS server sometimes failed to start as these testing certificates were invalid. For example, the certificates might have expired. With this update, the bootstrap script checks the /etc/raddb/certs directory and if it contains any testing or customer certificates, the script is not run and the FreeRADIUS server should start correctly. Make certain you had a clean shut down before you try performing an upgrade.If any Dominofiles are still in use at the time of installation usually dictates if anOS Reboot will be needed before starting the Domino Server. I have created a simple application of reading mail properties from a nsf file using Interop.Domino.dll, things works fine for 32 bit OS but when i attempt to run the same application under 64 bit OS i am unable to create LotusNotes Session, getting the COM Exception. Though i can run the same application on 64 bit by changing the plaform to x86 but if i change the platform to Any CPU its not working. 5ec8ef588b
